FOODS THEY BUILD OR DESTROY

Amazing but rarely suspected truths about the things you eat.

By ALFRED W. McCANN (Copyright, 1916, by Alfred W. McCann.)

CHAPTER 110

For nearly ten years a bitter fight has been waged by milk dealers and consumers against city, state and federal control of their products. Political compromise and the expenditure of vast sums of money have completely demoralized the efforts of milk reformers to improve the quality of all dairy products that milk today except in isolated instances depending upon the integrity of the individual farmer and dealer, is shamefully and dangerously below standard.

As late as August, 1907, so many scientists concerning the general unsanitary conditions of dairy products and contaminated milk and cream that the commissioners of the District of Columbia called a conference in the city of Washington.

At this conference the first grading of milk ever attempted in America for the purpose of minimizing the danger of bad milk was recommended. The grades adopted were:

Grade 1 for certified milk.
Grade 2 for inspected milk.
Grade 3 for pasteurized milk.
Grade 4 for milk that had been pasteurized and inspected and milk that had been pasteurized and inspected and milk that had been pasteurized and inspected.

It was known that pasteurization destroyed or rendered harmless the bacteria that cause tuberculosis, scarlet fever, diphtheria, typhoid fever, and other diseases.

For this reason it was urged that all milk should be pasteurized. It was not even then, thought that pasteurization would be looked upon as a device to substitute for the healthfulness of the milk because pasteurization does not and cannot remove bacteria from milk.

The action of the commissioners of the District of Columbia was without effect. It inspired violent opposition among milkmen all over the country. Organizations of dairymen and dealers were at once created for the purpose of resisting all "unfair" laws and of their "rights" as "citizens" and "producers."

In April, 1908, the board of health of New York city graded milk into four classes:

First—Selected milk. It was supposed to be the best milk available and had no significance. The term was merely a device employed by the milkmen themselves in order to deceive the public.

Second—Inspected milk. It was supposed to be the best milk available and had no significance. The term was merely a device employed by the milkmen themselves in order to deceive the public.

Third—Guaranteed milk. It was supposed to be the best milk available and had no significance. The term was merely a device employed by the milkmen themselves in order to deceive the public.

Fourth—Certified milk. It was supposed to be the best milk available and had no significance. The term was merely a device employed by the milkmen themselves in order to deceive the public.

At this conference it was resolved that pending the adoption of national standards the classification of milk recommended by the United States department of agriculture and approved by the commission of the District of Columbia, 1907, but which was adopted by the milkmen, should be adopted.

On the same day the conference passed another resolution as follows: "Whereas, it has been demonstrated that it is imperative that definite standards and regulations should be adopted to control the production and handling of dairy products for the purpose of making a uniform report recommending proper milk standards on which congress or state authorities may formulate milk legislation.

These men were brought together from all parts of the country at the expense of the New York milk committee in May, 1911.

After many discussions the commission adopted a classification providing for four grades of milk—Grade A, Grade B, Grade C, and Grade D.

Through the deliberations of this body a first time a hint of the true nature of the long-neglected abuses of the milk industry. Thousands of men were collected from milk men in many states for the purpose of presenting the official adoption of the new standards.

In October, 1911, the national commission on milk standards met again. Three months later, January, 1912, the New York city department of health provided for a new classification of milk—Grade A for infants and children, including certified milk, guaranteed milk, inspected milk, and selected milk.

Politics and commercialism had again interfered with the commission. The phrases "certified milk," "guaranteed milk," "inspected milk," and "selected milk" had no meaning, and were intended simply for the purpose of keeping open the doors through which milk abuses had been passing uncontrolled for years, the officials, who dared not offend the milk men, persisted in perpetuating the old and dangerous system.

In this new classification Grade B and Grade C were defined. Grade B was intended to cover milk for pasteurization, and Grade C was intended to embrace all milk so badly contaminated that it could be used for cooking or manufacturing purposes only.

The purpose of the criticism of these meaningless standards that the health authorities confessed their complacency and unwillingness to adopt any measures to avoid too great a disturbance of the milk industry. "We do not want to bring about a milk famine," they said. "It is better to have bad milk than no milk at all."

They have failed to provide the safeguards recommended by the national commission on milk standards set back the progress of milk reform in the United States for years, but it caused great rejoicing among the dairymen and dealers.

In the month of January, 1912, the national commission again met and in August of the same year its first report was published by the United States public health and marine hospital service.

In this report the pasteurization of all milk excepting certified milk was demanded.

In the meantime many prosecutions against dealers in dangerous milk were brought about through the health authorities of various communities. In all of them the defense of the prosecuted dealer was conducted by means of the fund raised in the milk industry for the purpose of defeating every effort of the national commission on milk standards to protect humanity against the dangers of unsafe dairy products.

Just how far these milk reactionaries went we are about to learn. The entire country is now suffering from their work.

ABE MARTIN

It's the feller who don't tell how he's got 't vote who settles elections. When some fellers take a vacation ever' body gets a rest.

Like those hot biscuits on Sunday night—they satisfy!

"Please pass the biscuits." And as those hot, crisp morsels melt in your mouth, they certainly do taste good. Best of all—they satisfy. Just what Chesterfields do for your smoking—they satisfy!

But, Chesterfields are MILD, too!

For the first time in cigarette history, you are offered a cigarette that satisfies, and yet is mild. Chesterfield!

Smokers realize that this is new enjoyment for a cigarette to give. And no other cigarette can give it to them—because no cigarette maker can copy the Chesterfield blend!

Today—try Chesterfields.

FORTY YEARS AGO

The Janesville Daily Gazette, Sept. 13, 1876.—The aldermen had a very animated session last evening, and a good deal of twitting was done. A large number of our citizens went to Milwaukee to attend the State Fair. The inclement weather will be a great drawback to the financial success of that exhibition. The total amount of real estate sales for the week ending Monday is $35,667.15. The transfer from J. W. Williams to Abraham Grow, amounting to $30,000 comprises the Williams block on East Milwaukee street. Lucius Robinson was unanimously nominated to run for governor of New York on the democratic ticket. At the republican county convention held in the court house yesterday evening the following men were nominated for the various county offices: Sheriff, Mr. Colley of Beloit; Register of Deeds, C. L. Valentine; Treasurer, Willis Miles; Clerk of the Circuit Court, A. W. Clinton; County Clerk, Sylvester Morgan; District Attorney, J. W. Sale; Coroner, William Taylor. E. F. Butler nominated for Congress in Massachusetts. This is the ninth day without a clear sky. The temperature range was from 65 degrees above zero to 63. The Mutuals left for Milwaukee this morning; they are going to have some hard tussles with the West ends here. David Watt was kicked by a colt last Wednesday and sustained severe injuries. Guy Carter, who has been very ill in the hospital has recovered. An unknown woman caused the citizens of our city much amusement this morning when she flipped over in a small skiff near the Milwaukee street bridge. She was rowing down the river and turned to look at the people on the bridge; being a rather buxom lass this movement proved too much for the balance of the frail, much for the unhappy woman was thrown headlong into the water. The accident occurred in very shallow water so there was no danger.
